Adventure

I have been blessed with a great family, health, a good job and a somewhat consistent, secure, and not-all-that-adventurous life. I get things done and take care of business. I do the right thing most of the time and follow through with my commitments, but I don't often take risks and I often find myself in a rut.

This message goes out to my sister Anne and brother -in-law Denchai Bunthan Manomai. My sister Anne is seven years younger and has an adventurous soul. She moved to Thailand twelve years ago, got a job and learned to speak Thai fluently. She met her future husband and made a home in Bangkok. There she taught English and learned Thai boxing. Now she has moved back to the U.S. with her husband, Denchai, a former professional Thai boxer and trainer. Here, they are seeking out a new path for their lives. I am proud of my sister Anne and Denchai. I am also envious of her courage. She has learned languages I will never learn and seen things I will never see. She continues to take bold steps in her life and career with apparent disregard for fear. She is happy, loving, kind, and generous.

I want to be more like my sister Anne and step out of my old patterns. I want to take chances and live with the consequences. Planning and discipline are good for long term security, but they can stifle the soul and smother God's purpose for our lives.

"Security is mostly a superstition. It does not exist in nature, nor do the children of men as a whole experience it. Avoiding danger is no safer in the long run than outright exposure. Life is either a daring adventure, or nothing. "
